LIBRARIANS' REPORT

It has been our good fortune for the Public Library Commission's Bookmobile to visit us this year. Each school and library in town is left at least twelve books once in six weeks. This, in addition to our books bought by the town and "State Aid" gives all a chance to obtain the best reading matter available.

The Bookmobile is a fine means of helping the rural libraries.

As in other years, magazines and books have been donated by friends of the library.

Respectfully submitted,

ABBIE M. REED, Librarian.

SUPERINTENDENT'S REPORT

---

To the School Board of Unity:

I hereby submit my sixth annual report as your superintendent of schools.

There has been but one change in the teaching force this year. Miss Edith Noble accepted a position at Langdon, and Miss Grace E. Furphy of Ridgewood, N. Y., was hired to teach at the Church school. Four teachers, Mrs. L. Alice Douglass and Miss Florence Hutchinson at East Unity, Miss Irene Tupper at the County School, and Mrs. Donald Cole at the Center continue in the same field as last year.

There is what might be called an exception at the Center. There are three pupils in a seventh grade there this year. This arrangement is not satisfactory as it crowds the time for all of the pupils. The modern elementary school with a little music, a little art, sciences, and other new subjects as well as an enlargement of the older ones requires more time from a teacher for each grade than was true even a few years ago.

It seems to be the best arrangement that can be made, however, as the roads are long to any other school.

By the new law, Unity was forced to transport two pupils to high school, one to Newport and one to Claremont. Unity has twenty pupils in high school which is a number very large for the valuation of the district. I hope that the legislature will pass changes in the laws so that the costs of high schools will be equalized along the same lines as the costs of elementary schools.

During the last three years there has been some misunderstanding about the laws compelling pupils to attend school. I feel that a few words here might help make them clearer.

Every child between eight and fourteen, and those between fourteen and sixteen who have not finished the work of the eight elementary grades shall attend school every minute the public schools are in session, and every person having the custody of a child is responsible for their attending all of that time with the following exceptions:

The pupil is physically or mentally ill.

The pupil is dismissed by school board for gross misconduct.

The pupil is exempt for his own good by the Commissioner.

The pupil is in good standing and is excused to take music lessons.

In a condensed form this covers all that the school law offers, except that parents and school officials may be fined who allow these laws to be broken.

But there are other laws both common and statute which conflict with the school law.

Children cannot be forced to go to school who do not have food and clothing. Children cannot be forced to attend school in very bad storms or over roads not fit or safe for them to be on, but that is a very hard matter to judge. There are cases such as where pupils attend funerals of near relatives or friends that it seems justifiable that they should be excused.

There are cases of emergency such as the burning of a home, the sudden sickness of a parent, or some unexpected condition that would bring a hardship to a family. This does not cover a case where parents keep a pupil out to work as a matter of convenience, even if the family is in financial difficulties, but it might happen in a case of early cold and a chance that the family's vegetables and apples for winter might be destroyed. It certainly would not ordinarily cover cases of pupils staying home to care for smaller children. In connection with this, it is well to note that New Hampshire has no school holidays (except June 21, 1938), but the school board's may close school such days as it is felt best for the pupils.

The exceptions to the school law as stated above may not be correct, as they are, as I have seen them used. I believe that they are correct, and I offer them only to help make clear the problem that faces an official when a case really came up.

Children cannot do good work unless they are in regular attendance, and I am sure that most parents want the best that they can afford for their children. Attendance has been better this year than in years past.

I have enjoyed the work in Unity, and I wish to thank the school officials, teachers and others who have helped make school work successful for the children.

Respectfully submitted,

WALTER L. MASON, Supt.
